

Yesterday, Lyle Tick, President, Buffalo Wild Wings visited with community leaders, guests and team members in Naperville, Illinois. Below is a revised statement following that visit:

“Buffalo Wild Wings’ leadership does not condone in any way what happened at the company’s Naperville location, which is why swift action was taken once we had all the facts.

This included dismissing involved team members at the Naperville restaurant and meeting in-person with city officials, guests and team members, so we could learn from this moment. Further, we will be conducting enhanced sensitivity training in our restaurants and working with city officials and community leaders to provide input and counsel.

The families involved brought up several great recommendations and requests in their press conference yesterday, all of which we can positively address. While we are working now with civic and community organizations in Naperville and surrounding area, we also look forward to having a meaningful, open dialogue with the families when they are ready.”
